Allergen Statement

- We do not process raw materials which contain as ingredient or additive nuts*, peanuts, fish, crustacean, sesame, mustard, celery and molluscs. With the exception of honey we also do not produce raw materials, which mean a contamination risk for these allergens. Therefore a cross contamination risk could be excluded by almost 100 % by the use of our products in regard to these 8 allergens.
- Cross-contaminations with the allergens gluten, milk, soya and egg cannot be excluded in general. They occur in the different product groups as follows:

Product group	possible cross-contaminations
Coffee	none
Sourdough ¹⁾	none ²⁾
Ingredients for bakery products	milk, soya, egg, gluten
sweetener	milk
milk products	individual case evaluation necessary
special products	individual case evaluation necessary

The allergen sulfite is not regarded because possible cross contaminations will not exceed the limit of < 10 ppm.

- We do not process raw materials which contain lupine as ingredient or additive. But some of our flour suppliers cannot totally exclude contaminations with lupines. A rest risk exists especially in stocks at the farmer and in harvesters due to cultivation of lupines as feed/food. Therefore, secondary contaminations with lupines in our products cannot be totally excluded.
- All production lines are checked continuously regarding the risk of cross contaminations. By means of adequate organisational and technological measures the risks of contamination are further on reduced as far as technologically possible.
